

5th Class have painted winter trees for art this month.

They are half way through their first novel this year. It is called 'War Horse' and they are really enjoying it. They have made predictions about what they think will happen in the novel and are looking forward to seeing if anyone guessed correctly.

In history, they are working on projects about people who have made a significant impact throughout history. They are looking great and will be ready to present soon!

6th class had been writing lots of poetry this month. They have composed Haikus, Limericks and poems using metaphor and imagery.

The children have been studying lines, angles, symmetry and the circle in maths. They also incorporated this into their art lessons and they have created some lovely symmetrical radial designs and one point perspective drawings.

They have been enjoying using the new iPads and have been using them to do research for argumentative essays entitled 'Children Should Not Do Homework'.

The shadows belong to Isaac Kinsella, George Given, Bernard Aucamp and Felicity McAllister!
